Preliminary Round Tapes

Please have your payment information and proof of age ready to attach to your application (if required for your division). Divisions are subject to change or cancel based on enrollment. Refunds will be given to participants in any cancelled divisions.

Editing is not forbidden but is not encouraged. The preliminary judging panel in each division has the right to not advance a participant if they deem that the performer relied too heavily on editing in their recording. Your submission should be a representation of your best live performance level, and the judges will be evaluating the submissions with that in mind. Choose wisely.

Please ensure your preliminary recording is contained within a single audio file with a maximum size of 15MB. It is suggested you use an mp3 file type to achieve this, and free programs are available online (and in programs like Garageband or iTunes) which can convert your audio files to an mp3 format. Please submit a separate recording for each division to which you apply.

Your submission must contain no spoken words or other identifying sounds. Similarly, the file name of your submission must also contain no identifying information.

The recordings will be presented to the Preliminary Round adjudicators anonymously, and in a random order. Brief written comments from each judge on their panel will be returned to the participants in every division. Exact scores or point values will not be shared. The comments will be focused on helping the participants identify ways in which they can improve for future live performance situations and/or recording submissions. These comments will be sent between February 1st and March 1st, 2022.

The adjudicating panels will feature one head judge for each caption (the Panel Chair), and s/he will be joined by three other southeastern performers and teachers for each round. The three additional judges will be different from the preliminary to the final round, but the Panel Chair will take part in and lead both panels. In the rare event of a tie between two competitors, the Panel Chair will have the final decision.
